Paris, July 14.—The Senate did not observe the national holiday to-day. Of to-day's number 100 are girls who are to be entertained at the Paul Devereux Home, at Deposit, N. Y. These girls have been selected for the Tribune Fresh Air Fund by the Association of Tuberculosis Clinics. All of them are undernourished children who come from families in which there is tuberculosis.

None of the children has the discussion be postponed until after President Poincaré's visit to Russia. Ex-Promier Clemenceau and his Radical friends objected, and the matter threatened to become one of confidence in the government.

Accepting the ministerial assurances, however, that everything necessary was being done to maintain the military forces at the highest state of efficiency, the Senate finally ratified the non-recurring expenditure of 1,400.000,000 francs ($280,000,000), already voted by the Chamber.

They will be put on a special diet and will be expected to sleep much. During the day periods of rest will be arranged for them, so that nature may work undisturbed in adding flesh and blood to their meagre frames.

An effort will also be made to have them play less strenuously than Fresh Airs usually do—without making them feel that they are having a dull time. The average city child finds life so interesting in the country that he or she doesn't find time to rest while avoirdupiois accumulates.

The children in this party have been selected by the clinics connected with Bellevue, Mount Sinai, St. Luke's and Gouverneur hospitals. Another group of 100 girls of this same class will be sent to Devereux Home on the return of this one. Two groups of boys, 125 in each, will be sent to the Shepherd Knapp Home later in the season. These parties will contain children recommended by all the clinics of the city.

LORDS PASS BILL TO AMEND HOME RULE

Clause Providing for Suspension of Main Act Inserted.

MORLEY CONDEMNS PEERS' AMENDMENTS

Says They Amount to Elaborate and Disingenuous Method of Rejecting the Measure.

London July 15.—In the proceedings in the House of Lords yesterday on the Home Rule amending bill the Unionist press professed to see signs that the government is divided on the question of "a clean cut" for Ulster. Lord Crewe first appeared to make an appeal for conciliation, only to be followed by a defiant speech from Lord Morley, who told the Unionist peers that if the transformed bill were to be taken as the peer's last word on the subject, the debate had been only an overelaberate and disingenuous way of rejecting it.

Soon after Lord Morley made this fiery speech, Lord Beauchamp, First Commissioner of Works and one of the younger members of the Cabinet, threw out the suggestion that the government might be willing to give facilities for a conference if there were any general desire expressed to that end. The lords' amendments to the bill will be considered at a meeting of the Cabinet to-morrow, and the measure will probably come before the House of Commons on Monday, but there is no decided opinion one way or the other as to the fate of the bill in that chamber.

The Marquis of Lansdowne, the Unionist leader, reiterated that nothing short of the Unionist amendments could avert the imminent peril that was threatening. He said this was his explanation of the demand for the total exclusion of the Province of Ulster, and he complained that the government had given the Unionists no assistance whatever in the task of averting civil war.

by Vitagraph Actors.

Another stage success of former years was revived in the form of a motion picture with the first showing at the Vitagraph Theatre on Monday night of "My Official Wife," a play by Richard Henry Savage. The principal part was taken by Clara Kimball Young, a picture actress of note in the interpretation of emotional parts. Miss Young is supported by an excellent cast of Vitagraph players.

"My Official Wife" is a fast moving drama of revolutionary politics in Russia. The heroine, who pretends to be the wife of an American traveller, is really a leader of Nihilists. Her activities form the centre of a series of thrilling episodes which are shown on the screen in a very effective manner. The excellence of the photographic effects and settings throughout the entire five reels is noteworthy.

"Uncle Bill," which shares honors with "My Official Wife," is an entirely different sort of picture. It is a comedy which is decidedly unusual in that it has reached the length of three reels but is still funny all the way.
